LMS Families,

While we were hopeful we could continue with our students in our buildings, as you know, we are making the transition to full virtual learning today. Our B day cohort will report live to their scheduled courses by visiting their Google Classrooms today, while our A day cohort participates in the asynchronous assignments posted within their Google Classroom.

As we make this transition to virtual learning, our students will continue to follow their current schedule, using a virtual format. These classes will take place at the same time their classes did while at school. There will be no change to their “at home” cohort day as this is when students have been completing asynchronous work. Please be aware that attendance at all regularly scheduled classes is required. At this time students will not need to check in for Homeroom attendance. Their homeroom Google classroom will be used to share any school announcements. Also, students will not report to any scheduled study hall or lunch. As a reminder here is our bell schedule which can also be found on our school website.

If you have any specific technical questions please contact eLearning@lancasterschools.org

Your counselors will also be checking in with you during this time, but please do not hesitate to reach out if you need anything.
